Description

A collection of 14 19th century and later Italian speckle glazed mixing bowls in blue, green, and yellow.

Italian speckle glaze is a ceramic surface inspired by traditional pottery regions of Italy, especially Tuscany and Umbria. It features a warm, creamy or earthy base scattered with fine iron or manganese flecks that create natural variation. Fired at high temperatures, the glaze melts smoothly while the speckles remain distinct, giving depth and movement.

Artisans value it for its rustic elegance and food-safe durability. Italian speckle glaze pairs beautifully with simple forms, enhancing plates, bowls, and tiles with a handcrafted, timeless character that reflects Italy's long history of functional, beautiful ceramics, both humble and refined in everyday use today globally.
