

Wedgwood Tonquin silver lustre soup set

£125

Description

A set of eight Wedgwood silver lustre soup bowls and saucers in the Tonquin pattern. Would also be perfect for deserts.

These are made using the silver resist technique. Silver resist ceramics are a type of pottery characterised by intricate silver patterns. The technique involves applying a silver compound to the surface before glazing and firing. During firing, the silver resists the glaze, creating contrasting designs. This method is used to achieve decorative and often reflective effects.
