

Regency cut-steel miser's purse, circa 1810

Sold

Description

Keep your cash safe(ish) in this Regency cut-steel miser's purse, circa 1810.

A miser's purse, popular from the 17th to 19th centuries, is a small, often ornate piece designed to store coins. Featuring compartments and a clasp, it allowed users to carry and organise their money efficiently. Its design reflected both practical use and social status, combining functionality with decorative craftsmanship.