Description

A wonderfully decorative set of six mid-century cast-iron table urns, each with a richly painted finish and an appealing classical profile. Their substantial cast construction, gently weathered surfaces, and sculptural forms give them a strong decorative presence, whether arranged together as a centrepiece or displayed individually around a home or garden room.

The urns are beautifully suited to planted arrangements, seasonal flowers, dried foliage, or simply as objects in their own right. Their aged painted surface brings warmth and texture to the group, while the weight and solidity of the cast iron lend a pleasing sense of permanence. Grouped as a complete set, they offer considerable versatility: use them along a dining table, on a console, fireplace mantel, garden table, or within an orangery or conservatory.

A charming and practical collection for those drawn to period garden ornament, country-house interiors, or the layered character of mid-century decorative objects. Their classical urn form works equally well in traditional and more contemporary settings.

Please note that these are heavy cast-iron items. Shipping costs will be confirmed by quotation once the delivery address is known; please contact us before purchase to arrange this.
