Description

A Maison Jansen (attb) circa 1930 French kingwood parquetry fold-over bridge table with bronze inlay.

Maison Jansen was a prestigious Paris-based interior design firm founded in 1880 by Dutch designer Jean-Henri Jansen. Known for blending traditional and contemporary styles, the firm catered to royalty, celebrities, and influential figures, including the White House during the Kennedy administration.

Maison Jansen's hallmark was its luxurious, eclectic interiors that incorporated both antiques and modern elements. The firm played a significant role in shaping 20th-century interior design, remaining influential until it closed in 1989.
