Description

A substantial and beautifully articulated 9ct yellow-gold track-link bracelet, hallmarked in Birmingham in 1987 and bearing the maker's mark JG&S for John Grinsell & Sons.

The bracelet is formed from a series of closely articulated, overlapping rectangular links, creating an attractive woven or track-link effect. The combination of polished and lightly textured surfaces catches the light beautifully, while the flexible construction allows the bracelet to sit comfortably around the wrist. The broad, substantial form gives it a particularly impressive presence without being overly ornate.

The bracelet is fully hallmarked to the clasp with the 375 mark for 9ct gold, the Birmingham anchor, the 1987 date letter, and the JG&S sponsor's mark.

A handsome example of 1980s British gold jewellery, with a strong architectural quality and excellent weight.
