

19th century salt glaze stoneware harvest jug

Sold

Description

19th century salt glaze stoneware harvest jug, circa 1820.

Stoneware harvest jugs, popular in the 18th and 19th centuries, are durable ceramic vessels often decorated with agricultural motifs. These jugs, used for storing and serving beverages, feature robust, earthy glazes and sturdy handles. Their design reflects rural traditions and craftsmanship, combining functionality with charming, rustic aesthetics.