

Georgian Boot Ale Warmer

£245

Description

A very rare slipper-shaped Georgian Boot Ale Warmer - place the jug of ale in the top and end into the fire, Circa 1740.

A Georgian boot ale warmer, popular in the 18th and early 19th centuries, was a unique vessel designed to keep ale warm. Shaped like a boot, it featured a metal compartment for heating. This charming accessory combined functionality with a playful nod to Georgian era craftsmanship and social customs.
