Description

A very fine two seat mahogany framed bergère sofa with Japanned panels, circa 1900 with handmade linen slub cushion.

Bergère cane furniture is a classic French style that combines elegance with comfort. Characterised by its upholstered frame, exposed wooden arms, and cane panels, it became popular in the 18th century during the reign of Louis XV. The cane back and sides offer a light, airy feel, while the deep seat and plush cushions provide comfort.

Often featuring ornate carvings, bergère chairs and sofas are timeless pieces, blending traditional craftsmanship with sophisticated, relaxed design.
